

CASE STUDY

Case Study: Growing Culturality's Campus Engagement Through Social & Event Marketing

A campus-facing marketing initiative focused on building awareness, increasing Instagram engagement, and translating online attention into in-person event participation.

+20.2%

Profile activity

+5.3%

Follower growth

Event Turnout

Supported through promotion

Goal

Increase Culturality's visibility on campus by strengthening social media presence, creating clearer event promotion, and encouraging students to move from online awareness to in-person participation.

Audience

College students interested in culture, community, identity, international perspectives, and campus events that create space for connection and conversation.

My Role

Supported content planning, event marketing, social media promotion, and audience-facing communication. Focused on making Culturality feel approachable, active, and relevant to student life.

What I Did

- Developed social media content ideas around community, culture, and event participation.
- Helped shape event promotion so students could quickly understand the purpose, timing, and value of attending.
- Used platform performance signals to understand what content encouraged interaction.
- Connected digital outreach with campus event marketing to support stronger turnout.

Results

Profile activity increased by 20.2%, followers grew by 5.3%, and event promotion supported stronger student turnout and awareness for Culturality's campus presence.

Strategic takeaway

Campus engagement grows when students can recognize themselves in the message. For Culturality, social content worked best when it connected culture to belonging, curiosity, and real event experiences.